

Free The Children is an educational partner and international charity working all across North America and the UK to engage youth, foster leadership, and inspire a generation to be active citizens locally and globally. In the four years that Free The Children has worked in Washington state, Renaissance School of Art and Reasoning has actively participated in the We Schools program and attended We Day, having the opportunity to hear from inspirational speakers and celebrity ambassadors for international development alongside other active student leaders from across the state. Renaissance School's participation each year has made a huge impact on their school, their community and our community partners overseas!

The passion and commitment of the educators at Renaissance School to create a well-rounded service learning experience for their students, inspires us time and time again. Locally, Renaissance School's students take action against youth homelessness and hunger, and have even been highlighted in local media for their inspiring efforts. Globally, their hard work has helped to provide education to Asemkow, Ghana, supported all five pillars of our sustainable development model in Haiti and many other contributions to holistic development! Renaissance's continued support of the Adopt A Village program through both fundraising and awareness raising initiatives has created opportunities for our community partners that would have never been possible before. We are so grateful to be partnered with Renaissance School of Art and Reasoning and we cannot wait to see what future students will continue to achieve!

Warm regards,
